Spectra is Lighthouse's powerful cloud-based, user-driven information retrieval, analysis and management platform for ediscovery, and compliance teams. Spectra is ideal for internal investigations and smaller matters where in-house experts are self-sufficient and want access to industry-best tools and capabilities, and expert resources available to support and supplement them, as needed. Combining Lighthouse's innovative technology with the processing power of Nuix, the document review capabilities of Relativity, and the imaging finesse of Ipro, Spectra delivers a powerful, scalable, and user-friendly experience. Spectra is deployed in the cloud, providing a scalable, highly available, and secure environment for mission-critical operations.

Challenges We Address

Although many of today's ediscovery tools are powerful, they are often limited by a steep learning curve, lack of workflow definition, and comprehensive management overhead, which take up valuable resources and time. Less sophisticated tools provide simpler workflows, but lack scalability, functionality, and flexibility. Too often, multiple tools are required to drive data through an end-to-end ediscovery workflow, but they lack connectivity with other tools and data sources. Thus, ediscovery teams end up exporting and importing data between tools, which introduces the opportunity for error, limits the ability to scale processes across matters, and results in copies of data across dispersed systems. In addition, there are multiple billing triggers and unclear costs, which ultimately makes budgeting unpredictable and inflexible.

"This is the future of ediscovery ...More well developed and beautifully executed than anything I've seen."
